Mrs. Lawson was put on the witness stand directly after the noon recess and tes-tified for nearly two hours and a half, the greater part of the time in re-leaned to executions must be her senter. ing was by Mr. Searls, chief counsel for the state. "Do you mean to say to this jury that the body was not dragged from the cellar?" asked Mr. Searls of Dr. Spalding after the latter had gone into some detail as to the blood trail in the yard and other points along that line of the evidence. "It was not dragged," replied Dr. Spalding. "Why?" inquired Mr. Searls. "Because the leaves and grass were not disturbed," the doctor replied. Mr. Searls asked the witness if he did not recall that other witnesses had testified that the leaves in the yard along the trail of blood were bending from the cellar toward the stable. The doctor replied that he did not; he had not heard all of the witnesses for the state.

Torrey, Stimulants had previously been administered to Mrs. Lawson, that she might better stand the ordeal through which she was about to pass. She stood the strain well, testifying at length on many points brought out during the trial, and was willing to go on when Mr. Torrey had finished with her and answer the questions of State Attorney Charles E. Searis. A brief recess was ordered by Judge Curtis, however, and Mrs. Lewson was given a few minutes of rest before Mr. Searls took up his questioning.

Mrs. Lawson Given Chance to Rest. The state attorney went over much ground with Mrs. Lawson before he finished his examination, near the end of which he inquired if she were able to continue on the stand, Mrs. Lawson modding in the affirmative. Miss Apley, Mrs. Lawson's nurse, was called, and after an examination of the pulse of the witness declared it irregular and in response to a question said that modding in the affirmative. Miss Apley, Mrs. Lawson's nurse, was called, and after an examination of the pulse of the witness declared it irregular and in response to a question said that Mrs. Lawson had been administered all the stimulant it was safe to give her. Mr. Searls thereupon concluded his examination and another brief recess was declared, after which a few witnesses were recalled by the state to testify on points in Mrs. Lawson's evidence.

Defense Resumed. At the beginning of the morning pession the defense resumed its side of the case

Thought Wound from Horse's Hoof.
Dr. Joseph Spalding, Woodstock, medical examiner, who saw the body of Mr. Lawson before it was removed from the stall in the stable, was called to the witness stand by Mr. Torrey, senior counsel for Mrs. Lawson. Dr. Spaiding said he had been a practicing physician for about 48 years. He told of his visit to the Lawson place and of of his visit to the Lawson place and of what he saw in the stable. The body lay in the stall. He described it as termany ed and the chest was cover-th parn liquor. Bigor mortis had a and Dr. Spaiding gave his opinfrom these to three and a half hours produce. His first impression was the wome in the head had been caused by the hoof of a horse; later he revised this opinion.

Mrs. Lawson Seemed Very Sad.

Dr. Spaiding helped move the body into the house with Byron Eddy and John S. May. The body was taken into the house through a door on the north side, leading to the witchen. He saw in the wound on the left side of the head sufficient cause for death, but did not make a particular examination of all the wounds until later. Mrs. Lawson seemed very sad and downeast. Dr. Spalding testified, but he could not recall just what the substance of her comments were at the time. She was lamenting terribiy e. She was ismenting terribly claimed her heart was hurting her. He found that the action of her heart was irregular and prescribed digitalis and bromide of potassium.

Bleed Trail to Cellar,

On his next visit to the Lawson home at about 8 o'clock on the morning of the 15th he saw Coroner A. G. Bill and State Policeman Robert Hurley. He made a further investigation of the case in their company. Dr. Spalding told of the blood trail leading from the cellar to the barn and of blood on the cellar stairs. The cellar stairs showed blood stains that had been partly wiped away with ashes. There was also blood under the stairs and more blood had dripped through from the stairs on to boards that had been turned over later, bloody side down.

Washington, June 3.—Mrs. Jennie M. Baton of Boston, widow of Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eston, and her first husband, D. Henry Ainsworth, of Morristown, Adix, were married here today. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. Morgan Chambers and attracted so little attention that nothing was known of the event in Washington until it was announced that the couple had gone to a summer resort for their second honeymoon.

Admiral Eaton died at his home in Norwell, Mess., March 7, 1913, under circumstances that excited suspicion and resulted in the widow's arrest and imprisonment. After a long drawn out trist, Mrs. Eaton in October last was found not guilty.

Mr. Altsworth was divorced from his wife eight years ago in Illinois. He gave his age today as 49 and that of his bride as 40. to Mr. Lawson was secreted behind a chimney in the cellar and that when Mr. Lawson came, down the cellar stairs that person had stepped out from behind the chimney and dealt elle victim a frightful blow on the head with some rough and irregular piece of iron, that the blow was terrible in its force; that Mr. Lawson fell backwards on to the stairs; that he was probably instantly rendered unconscious and had no opportunity to make an outery; that other blows were then rained upon the prostrate man, who later slipped down from the stairs to the cellar bottom. Dr. Spaiding's theory was that the blood came to be on the stairs by reason of Mr. Lawson's falling backward upon them.

Wife Teo Weak to Deal Such a Biow.

In response to questions by Mr. Torsey, Dr. Spaiding testified that in his pointon, after an examination of Mrs. Lawson's physical condition, she was not capable of dealing such a terrible blow as the one that killed her husband, and also that it was his opinion at Mrs. Lawson was not strong to the stable. Dr. Spaiding testified in answer to a line of questioning, that it is asset more difficult to carry a human hedy from which is then in a limp condition than it is to marry a body after rigor merits has set in. NEW HAVEN ROAD

DIRECTORS NOW DIRECT. James S. Elton Says They Are New No Longer Influenced by One or Two Men.

Washington, June 3—James S. Many of the properties thus acquirquired it was stated had only a prospective value, the natural growth of New England being taken into consideration by the directors.

Mr. Elton questioned on this point by Wiliam Nelson Cromwell, who appeared as counsel for several of the directors, declared that the purchase for $11,900,000 of the New York, West-chester and Boston road, the stock of which former President Mellen of the New Haven testified, was worth only "ten cents a pound," was for the purpose of obtaining a foothold in the Metropolitan district and securing greater and better terminal facilities in New York.

Mr. Elton testified that the directors of the New Haven had changed their methods and now were not influenced by one or two men, like J. Plerpont Morgan and Mr. Mellen,

Mr. Skinner sald it was his belief that if "things had been allowed to go on and the New Hawen and its officials had not been subjected to inimical inquiries and legislation the property would have pulled out all right, perhaps in five years."

He asserted that Mr. Mellen could have retained the presidency of the road had he so desired, as he had a majority of the directors with him.

Congressman Clande L'Engle, on the face of returns, has been defeated in the Fourth district; Congressman Sparkman probably will win by a small margin in the First district. Representatives Clark and Denton won renomination in the Second and Third districts, respectively.

New Haven, Conn., June 3.—Female and short lobsters are to be protected as never before by the state fish and game commission, according to Supt. John M. Crampton today. This fact became evident when the new cruising launch of the commission, which will run up and down the Long Island shore during the summer, was put into service. In the launch were Mr. Crampton, Wilbur Smith, a protector of Fairfield county, David H. Clark, a game warden, and George Wildman, a protector for New Haven county. The launch ran to Stony Creek, where lobster catches of Michael McDonald and Charles Smalley were looked over and both men taken before Judge Eades, who held them for a hearing on Monday. On the way back the launch stopped at Sperry light, where the lobster cars of the keeper were examined. A female and some shorts were found. Agihe keeper is a federal employe and must not leave his light without permission, a warrant could not be served. The federal authorities have been asked to give assistance in the case. Mediation Waits on Carranza

UPON HIS WORD DEPENDS THE ENTIRE MEXICAN PROBLEM

DIPLOMACY OR

ings. United States and Huerta May

Niagara Falis, June 3—Mediation tonisht wafts on General Carranza, commander-in-chief of the constitutionalists forces in Mexico. He has, a communication from the three South American diplomats which opens the doer for constitutionalist representation in the conference here. Upon his word depends whether the entire Mexican problem will be settled by diplomacy or whether the constitutionalist ferce will continue to light their way by force of arms to Mexics City.

The mediators have smoothed the path for constitutionalist participations. June 8-Mediation

The mediators have smoothed the path for constitutionalist participation. The United States government wants them to accept. A rejection of the invitation may eventually mean the withdrawal by the Washington government of the moral support it has been extending to the constitutionalist casuse.

The mediators tonight are confident General Carransa will send envoys here. Instead of believing the negotiations would be indefinitely prolonged by such a course they think a pacific settlement would be more quickly obtained, as all parties in the Mexican dispute would then be here to shape the programme of peace.

There were no conferences today between the Mexican of American delegates.

Note Sent to Carranza Just what was contained in the note from the mediators to General Carranza, transmitted today by Rafael Zubaran at Washington to the constitutionalist chief, was not revealed here. The mediators said that out of courtesy to Carranza's decurrent ed bere. The mediators said that out of courtesy to Carranas's document would not be made public here. An answer is not expected for another day or two but there is a general confidence that it will be favorable. The mediators have not literally invited the constitutionalists anew, but the phraseology of the note is such as to pave the way for their entrance to the negotiations. It is in effect a clarification of the misunderstandings which have existed and if construed in the conciliatory and friendly spirit which the mediators intended to convey, persons who have read the note which the mediators intended to con-vey, persons who have read the note say they cannot see how the recipients can refuse to square themselves with the public opinion of the world. There is every disposition on the part of the mediators to treat the in-terests of the constitutionalists fair-ly and with a realisation that they terests of the constitutionalists fairly and with a realisation that they dominate now the largest part of Maxico and constitute practically the mose important factor in the entire problem. It is understood here that the constitutionalists have hesitated to favor mediation because of a misconception of the character of the proceedings. The mediators are daily approaching Maxican internal questions, which have also an international aspect, in most tactful manner. The Huerta delegates, for instance, have been able to discuss these phases without yielding the sovereignty of their nation. There is no purpose here to legislate on the land questions. Americans have never suggested any specific plan for the remedy of the agrarian troubles, nor do they intend to do so. What the American government and the mediators desire is that the new provisional government shall be morally obligated to take up the land question and dispose of it with justice to all interests. What they wish most of all is that the new government will be so impressed with its obligation as a result of the mediation, that it cannot ignore the problem as has been done for two score years.

If the constitutionalists are obdurate and refuse to enter, mediation

If the constitutionalists are obdu-rate and refuse to enter, mediation will proceed. An agreement will be reached between the United States and the Huerta administration through

N TELEGRAPHIC TOUCH

WITH GEN. CARRANZA Expected That Attitude of Constitu tionalists Will Be Known Today.

Washington, June 3.—Whether the constitutionalists of Mexico are to participate in peace negotiations at Niagara Falls probably will be determined before another day has passed. Tonight usents of General Carranza, the revolutionary chieftain, were in direct telegraphic communication with the constitutionalist leader, after having forwarded to him the answer of the South American mediators to his message of protest carried to Niagara Falls last week.

Publication of the message of the mediators was withheld here until General Carranza has determined upon his reply.

mediators was withheld here until General Carranza has determined upon his reply.

Rafael Zubaran, minister of the interior in Carranza's cabinet and at the head of the constitutionalist agency in Washington, would not discuss the nature of the mediators' proposals or the probable attitude of his chief. Persons in touch with constitutionalist agents however, ventured the suggestion that the terms upon which the mediators proposed to receive the constitutionalists into the peace negotiations would be decilined.

The note from the mediators, addressed to Mr. Zubaran, reached Washington in the afternoon in a special delivery letter, in contrast to sending of a special representative, Juan F. Urquidi, last week, to take the Zubaran note conveying General Carranza's communication. As soon as the message was received Mr. Zubaran, Mr. Vasconcelos and Mr. Urquidi, the constitutionalist agent, began preparations to communicate with General Carranza at Durango by a special telegraph wire. When the message of the mediators had been forwarded, conferences with their chieftain were begun over the wire, Mr. Zubaran announcing early in the eveing that he hoped to have some contain were begun over the wire, Mr. Zubaran announcing early in the evening that he hoped to have some conclusive information later. In that event it was probable there would be made public the message from the mediators, together with an answer, if there was to be any and also the original note from the constitutionalists which called forth the proposal from Niagara Falls.

If was stated that the message from the mediators was accompanied by a request that nothing be made public until a conclusion had been reached.
